

Today's Students Need More Support

Attrition rates in advanced education have remained alarmingly high over the past three decades, with 40-60 percent of students failing to complete their program.

But it's not just because of increasingly rigorous academics.

Since 2010, student enrollments in universities have steadily declined, and the pandemic has further exacerbated this trend. Students today have more concerns affecting their lives than ever before.

They are juggling a combination of financial constraints, mental health challenges, and fears about their university success. Consequently, students are simply unprepared to navigate these types of challenges successfully without support.

Introducing The Doctoral and Graduate Success Program!

This groundbreaking initiative success support system sets students up for success by giving them the tools they need to thrive at your university!

The program provides a student-centric focus on success skills and tools, including:

Academic emotional intelligence communications skills

Work/life balance skills

Research and academic writing skills

It also includes the most important key for student success ... integrated group coaching to help students navigate challenges alongside their peers.

Benefits University Gains From the Program:

Finally, you can ...

- ✓ Bridge the support gap and provide value-added student support ...
- ✓ Attract and retain students while boosting program completion rates ...
- ✓ And cultivate academic excellence at all levels, with a program that can adapt to unique needs.

Benefits Students Gain From the Program:

It's easier for students to succeed when they can ...
